NOTE.

These Outlines are designed to reinforce a series of lectures and to present in convenient form the substantial facts of the history of English literature. They may be used in connection with the Century Readings for a Course in English Literature issued by the same publishers. After Outline XII, unless otherwise stated, all dates appended to the titles of literary works indicate earliest printed publication.

OUTLINES

OUTLINE I

The Formation of the English People

I. BRITAIN AT THE TIME OF CÆSAR'S INVASION, 55 B. C.

1. Three Branches of the Celtic Race.
 - a. Britons, or Brythons, in the Southeast.
 - b. Gaels, or Goidels, in West and North.
 - c. Caledonians (and Picts?), in extreme North.
2. Celtic Contributions to English Literature.
 - a. To the language, only a score or two of words.
 - b. To English literature, many romantic stories.
(See Outlines VI and VII.)

II. ROMAN OCCUPATION.

1. Roman Invasions.
 - a. 55 and 54 B. C., two invasions by Cæsar.
 - b. 43 A. D., invasion under Emperor Claudius. Under a series of governors conquest completed by 82 A. D.
 - c. 410, Roman rule withdrawn.
2. Roman Occupation (43-410) and English Literature.
 - a. Language. A small number of Latin words entered the language as the result of the Roman occupation. The important influx of Latin words into English occurred later.
 - b. Literature. Contributed practically nothing to the content of English literature.
3. Withdrawal of Romans Left Celts as Before.

III. ANGLO-SAXON CONQUEST.

1. Invasions.
 - a. Jutes (Denmark) invade Southeast, 449 A. D. (?).
 - b. Saxons (Mouth of Weser) invade Southwest, c. 477.
 - c. Angles (Schleswig) invade East and North, 5th century.
2. Permanent Occupation of Invaders. Celts exterminated or driven to West and North.
3. Anglo-Saxon Conquest and English Literature.
(See Outlines II, III, and IV.)

IV. THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

1. The Name.

Celts in Britain called both invaders and their language, Saxon. Writers soon began to call both language and people, English, possibly because Angles outnumbered Jutes and Saxons.
2. Periods of the English Language.
 - a. Anglo-Saxon, or Old English,—500-1150. (Alfred.)
 - b. Middle English,—1150-1500. (Chaucer.)
 - c. Modern English,—1500-Present. (Shakspeare, Milton, Wordsworth.)

OUTLINE II

Anglo-Saxon Heathen Poetry

I. RELIGION OF THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

1. Chief Gods: Woden, Thor, Tiu.
2. Worship: Sacrifice; chanting and dancing; no idolatry.

II. SOCIAL CUSTOMS OF THE ANGLO-SAXONS.

1. Court of a King.
2. Anglo-Saxon Poets: Scop; Gleeman.

III. BEOWULF.

1. Date. Original poem probably arose in the course of the seventh century.
2. Historical Basis.
About 512 A.D. Chohilaicus (Hygelac of poem), king of Geats (Scandinavia), raided the Lower Rhine. In this expedition, a hero, Beowulf (nephew of Hygelac) distinguished himself.
3. Mythological Basis (Doubtful).
Grendel, Grendel's Mother, Breca, and Dragon represent hostile forces of nature: winter, darkness, power of the sea. Probably a god, Beowa, has been confused or blended with the hero, Beowulf.
4. Process of Composition.
Chief narrative contains four stories, probably originally separate: Fight with Grendel, Fight with Grendel's Mother, Beowulf's Return to his Home, Fight with Dragon. By the year 700 (c.) these had probably been united in a form approaching that of present poem.
5. Literary Characteristics.
(See Tutorial Meetings) Repetition, swift narration, episodes, absence of simile, 'kennings,' long speeches.

IV. OTHER ANGLO-SAXON HEATHEN POETRY.

1. Lyrics.
 - a. The Seafarer.
 - b. The Wanderer.
 - c. The Ruins.
 - d. The Husband's Message.
 - e. The Wife's Lament.
 - f. Deor's Lament.
 - g. Widsith.
2. Historical Poems.
 - a. The Battle of Brunanburgh (fought in 937).
 - b. The Battle of Maldon (fought in 991).
3. Riddles and Charms.

V. ANGLO-SAXON METRICAL FORM.

The single line is composed of two half-lines, which vary in number of syllables, but which agree in having each two accents. The two half-lines are bound together by alliteration of accented syllables.

OUTLINE III

Anglo-Saxon Christian Poetry

I. INTRODUCTION OF CHRISTIANITY.

1. Roman Christianity.

King Æthelberht of Kent converted after the arrival of Augustine, who reached England in 597 (See Bede, Ecclesiastical History, Bk. I, Chap. 25). King Edwin of Northumbria converted by Paulinus, a disciple of Augustine, about 627. (See Bede, Bk. II, Chap. 13.)

2. Irish Christianity.

In course of 7th century conversion of Northumbria, Wessex, Mercia, and Essex secured by Irish missionaries.

3. Council of Whitby, 664.

Differences between Roman and Irish Christianity settled in favor of Rome. (See Bede, Bk. III, Chap. 25.)

II. THE CÆDMONIAN POEMS.

Bede (Bk. IV, Chap. 24) recounts the inspiration and poetical activity of Cædmon (fl. 670).

Junius (Librarian of the Earl of Arundel) published (1655) a MS. containing four poetical paraphrases long ascribed to Cædmon.

1. Genesis. Paraphrase of Genesis to story of Abraham and Isaac. Combination of two poems, Genesis A (lines 1-234, 852-2735) and Genesis B (lines 235-851). A and B differ in style.

2. Exodus. Free paraphrase, chiefly of story of Passage of Red Sea by Israelites. Style more highly colored and original than that of Genesis.

3. Daniel. Free paraphrase of Book of Daniel, Chaps. I-IV.

4. Christ and Satan. Consists of three poems: Fall of the Angels, Harrowing of Hell, Temptation of Christ by Satan.

The only poem that can with any confidence be assigned to Cædmon is the so-called Hymn of Cædmon.

III. CYNEWULF. An English ecclesiastic, perhaps a bishop, of the 8th century.

1. Christ,—Advent, Ascension, Last Judgment.

2. Elene,—Legend of Helen, mother of Constantine.

2. Juliana,—Legend of Saint Juliana.

4. Fates of the Apostles.

IV. SCHOOL OF CYNEWULF.

1. Phænix.

2. Judith.

3. Andreas.

V. RELIGIOUS LYRICS.

1. Dream of the Rood.

2. Bede's Death Song.

OUTLINE IV

Alfred the Great and Anglo-Saxon Learning

I. MONASTIC LEARNING (LATIN).

1. Aldhelm (d. 709). First great scholar in England.
2. Bede (d. 735). Greatest scholar of the Anglo-Saxon period. Lived at the monastery of Jarrow, in Northumbria. Ecclesiastical History of the English People (731), treats history of Britain from 55 B. C. to 731 A. D.
3. Alcuin (735-804). Educated at York. Especially distinguished for his educational services under Charlemagne.

II. Alfred the Great (849-901; King of Wessex, 871-901).

1. Life. In his youth, visited Rome, and the Frankish court of Charles the Bald. From travel and from personal relations with the Continent, Alfred gained a cosmopolitan point of view reflected later in his administration of the kingdom of Wessex. Resisted inroads of the Danes, and by Treaty of Wedmore (878) forced Danes to retire north of Watling Street. Took a personal part in the administration of justice. Patronized learning; increased the number of monastery schools; secured the aid of foreign scholars, of whom the most important is Asser, a Welsh cleric, who wrote a Life of King Alfred, our most valuable authority concerning Alfred's personality.
2. Literary work. Chiefly translation.
 - a. The Pastoral Care, by Pope Gregory (Pope, 590-604). A guide for those in ecclesiastical authority. Alfred's own Preface indicates his ideals for reviving learning in England.
 - b. History, by Orosius, a Spanish ecclesiastic of the 5th century. A universal history, widely used. Alfred altered the original freely, both by omission and by addition. Condensed seven books to six.
 - c. Ecclesiastical History, by Bede (see above).
 - d. The Consolation of Philosophy, by Boethius (d. 524?). A dialogue between Boethius and Philosophy. Central doctrine is fatalism and submission. Alfred translates freely, adding occasional facts, pious observations, and vivid figures of speech.
 - e. Alfred took an active part in maintaining and perfecting the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, a desultory history of England which was continued from time to time at several monasteries, and which eventually covered the period 60 B. C. to 1154 A. D.
3. Alfred's Contribution to English Literature.
 - a. Revived learning in England. Learning had declined in Northumbria, where it had first gained distinction. Largely through his personal effort, Alfred established a new center of learning in Wessex.
 - b. Revived the native language. By translating distinguished Latin works into Anglo-Saxon, Alfred gave dignity to the native language, and contributed much toward establishing a clear, idiomatic English prose style.

OUTLINE V

The Norman Conquest

- I. ENGLISH HISTORY FROM ALFRED TO 1066.
 1. Danish Rule, 1016-1042.
 2. Saxons Restored. Edward the Confessor, 1042-1066.
- II. ENGLISH LITERATURE FROM ALFRED (d. 901) TO 1066.

Ælfric (955-c. 1025). Sermons,—written to a large extent in alliterative prose.
- III. THE NORMANS BEFORE 1066.

Rollo, the Northman, settled at mouth of the Seine 902. Northmen of Normandy adopted Christianity and the French language. English king, Ethelred, married (1002) Emma, daughter of Richard, Duke of the Normans. William, sixth Duke of Normandy (after 1035), first cousin of Edward the Confessor.
- IV. COMING OF THE NORMANS TO ENGLAND.
 1. William's Claims Opposed to Those of Earl Harold.
 2. Battle of Hastings (Senlac), 1066.
 3. Political Effect. Feudalism perfected in England.
- V. EFFECT UPON THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.
 1. Grammar. Accelerated dropping of inflectional endings.
(Cf. 'of,' in place of genitive case ending.)
 2. Phraseology. Many phrases modeled on French.
(Cf. 'to bear' arms, witness, etc., from French porter.)
 3. Vocabulary. Considerable French element introduced.
- VI. EFFECT UPON ENGLISH METRICAL FORM.

Resulted in a compromise between Anglo-Saxon (irregular number of syllables, alliteration, accent) and French (rime, regular number of syllables, accent unimportant). Result seen in Chaucer: rime in place of alliteration; accent retained, but reduced to regularity.
- VII. EFFECT UPON ENGLISH LITERATURE.
 1. Lyric Poetry (Provençal).
 2. Tales and Fabliaux.
 3. Allegory.
 4. Lais. (Marie de France, early 13th century.)
 5. Romances. (See Outlines VI and VII.)

OUTLINE VI

The Rise and Flourishing of Romance

I. ROMANCE.

1. A romance is a fictitious story of heroic, marvelous, or supernatural incidents, derived either from history or from popular tradition, and written at considerable length, either in verse or in prose, by a conscious literary artist, for refined and courtly readers. Romance is to be distinguished from epic, fairy tale, ballad, legend. Romances arose in the 12th century, chiefly in France, where stories from the best known parts of Europe and Asia were gathered and given romantic treatment. From France, romances were distributed to other countries, often to the countries from which the original stories had arisen.
2. Romance, the product of feudal society.

II. ENGLISH ROMANCES. In England, romances in English and romances in French existed side by side. With one or two possible exceptions, English romances are derived from French romances.

1. Ultimate Sources of English Romances.

- a. French material. Stories of Charlemagne, Roland, and other national French heroes. In France these stories (chansons de geste) were originally national epics. In England the same stories became pure romance.
- b. Celtic material.
 1. Breton lais. Short romantic tales of love, magic, and adventure. Of lais the most distinguished author is Marie de France (fl. early 13th century), a native of France, but a resident of England.
 2. Arthurian romances. (See Outline VII.)
- c. Matter from antiquity.
 1. Story of Thebes.
 2. Story of Troy.
 3. Story of Alexander.
 4. Story of Æneas.
- d. English (or Scandinavian) material. Although these are, probably, true Germanic stories, and although they were, probably, current first in Germanic languages, the extant English romance versions have in nearly all cases come through a French intermediary.
 1. Horn.
 2. Havelock.
 3. Guy of Warwick.
 4. Bevis of Hampton.

2. Literary Form.

- a. Verse, couplets, stanzas, alliterative lines.
- b. Plot often rambling or monotonously long.
- c. Picturesque language.
- d. Conventional characterization.

OUTLINE VII

Arthurian Romance

I. THE ULTIMATE SOURCES OF ARTHURIAN ROMANCE.

1. Annals.

a. Historia Britonum (c. 800 A.D.), usually ascribed to Nennius. Latin. Arthur merely a valiant leader of Britons.

b. Annales Cambriae (10th century). Latin. Arthur mentioned merely as a successful leader of Britons.

2. Celtic Tales.

The Mabinogion. A 14th century compilation of Welsh tales. Of these tales two are Arthurian stories of pure British origin,—Kulhwch and Olwen, and The Dream of Rhonabwy,—in which Arthur is a fairy kind, surrounded by uncouth courtiers who have magic at their command.

II. DEVELOPMENT OF ARTHURIAN ROMANCE.

1. Geoffrey of Monmouth: Historia Britonum (c. 1137). Latin. Using 'a very ancient book in the British tongue.' Geoffrey developed Arthur into the central figure of the Historia. Brilliant king, world conqueror. No Lancelot, Tristan, Holy Grail, or Round Table.

2. Metrical Chronicles, Based Ultimately upon Geoffrey's Historia.

a. Wace: Brut (1155 A.D.). French verse.

Added (1) Round Table: (2) details concerning the Passing of Arthur.

b. Layamon: Brut (c. 1200). English alliterative verse.

Based upon Wace's Brut. Added (1) fairy element; (2) making and properties of the Round Table.

III. ARTHURIAN ROMANCES.

1. Cycle of Merlin. A magician closely associated with Arthur.

2. Cycle of Gawain. Arthur's nephew. The most frequent single figure in Arthurian romance. In early romances, Gawain is the gentleman par excellence (see Sir Gawain and the Green Knight). In later stories (see Malory and Tennyson) he became 'a reckless and irreverent knight.'

3. Cycle of Lancelot. Not connected with the original Arthurian tradition. Lancelot first appears as the lover of Queen Guenevere in the Conte de la Charette of Chrétien de Troies (fl. c. 1160).

4. Cycle of the Holy Grail. In origin, the grail probably a heathen magic vessel. Original hero of the grail quest was Gawain, later superseded by Perceval, and by Lancelot's son, Galahad.

5. Cycle of Tristan. Story of Tristan and Iseult not originally connected with Arthurian tradition.

6. Cycle of the Death of Arthur. (See Outline XII.)

IV. Chrétien de Troies. French courtly poet (fl. c. 1160). Wrote (in whole or in part) six Arthurian poems; Erec and Enide, Cliges, Conte de la Charette, Yvain, Tristan, Perceval.

OUTLINE VIII

Early Middle English Literature

I. ANONYMOUS LITERATURE.

1. Romances. (See Outlines VI and VII.)
2. Lais. (See Outline VI.)
3. Religious and Didactic Works.
 - a. Proverb poems. Proverbs of Hendyng (c. 1300).
 - b. Debates. Debate of Body and Soul (c. 1200).
 - c. Sermons.
 - d. Legends of saints. Golden Legend (13th century).
4. Tales.
 - a. Oriental tales. Dame Sirith (13th cent.). See Chaucer's Merchant's Tale and Manciple's Tale.
 - b. Fabliaux. Popular, pointed, bourgeois anecdotes. See Chaucer's Miller's Tale, Reeve's Tale, Friar's Tale, and Sumnour's Tale.
 - c. Pious Tales. Exempla,—tales inculcating a moral or religious principle; miracula,—miracles of saints. See Chaucer's Prioress's Tale.
 - d. Beast-fables. See Chaucer's Nun's Priest's Tale.
5. Lyrics.
 - a. Religious. A Good Orison of Our Lady (c. 1210).
 - b. Popular. Alysoun (c. 1300).
6. Allegory. Roman de la Rose (13th century). See Chaucer (Outline IX).

II. AUTHORS PRECEDING CHAUCER.

1. Layamon: Brut (c. 1200). (See Outline VII.)
2. Orm (fl. c. 1200): Ormulum,—an unfinished series of paraphrases of the Gospels of the ecclesiastical year, with homilies.

III. CHAUCER. (See Outlines IX and X.)

IV. CONTEMPORARIES OF CHAUCER.

1. Piers the Plowman. Long ascribed to William Langland.
An allegorical poem composed and revised at different times during the period 1362–1398, probably by some five different writers. The larger part of the original poem probably by a single author, whose christian name was Will, and whose surname may have been Langland or Langley. The poem consists of three visions: Vision of the Field Full of Folk, Vision of Piers the Plowman, and Vision of Do-well, Do-bet, and Do-best. Written in alliterative verse.
2. John Gower (c. 1325–1408). Friend of Chaucer.
Confessio Amantis (1386–90). A series of more than a hundred stories arranged in a 'frame,' to illustrate the seven deadly sins. Simple, direct narration. Regular, polished riming verse. Gower's Tale of Florent, Tale of Appius and Virginia, and Tale of Constance embody stories found in Chaucer's Wife of Bath's Tale, Physician's Tale, and Man of Law's Tale respectively.
3. John Wyclif. (See Outline XXX.)

OUTLINE IX

Chaucer: Life and Works

I. LIFE OF GEOFFREY CHAUCER (c. 1340-1400).

Born in London about 1340. Son of a vintner. 1357, attached to household of Edward III's son, Lionel. 1359, served in English army in France, and taken prisoner. 1367, granted life pension for services as valet in King's household. 1372-73, first diplomatic mission to Italy. 1374, held office connected with customs of port of London. 1377, diplomatic missions in Flanders and France. 1378, second journey to Italy in King's service. 1382, held another office connected with customs. 1385, member of Parliament for Kent. 1389, Clerk of King's works at Westminster. 1390, Clerk of King's Works at Windsor. 1394, granted an additional pension of 20 pounds a year. 1399, on accession of Henry IV, Chaucer's pension again increased. 1400, Chaucer's death.

II. CHIEF POETICAL WORKS OF CHAUCER.

1. French Period (to 1373).

- a. Romance of the Rose, a translation of part of Le Roman de la Rose, a French allegorical poem written in the course of the 13th century. Probably Chaucer wrote only the first part of the English translation.
- b. Book of the Duchess (1369-70).
Written as a memorial to Lady Blanche (died Sept., 1369), wife of John of Gaunt (Chaucer's patron). Shows influence of French allegorical love poetry.

2. Italian Period (1373-1385).

- a. Troilus and Criseyde (c. 1383).
Based upon Boccaccio's poem, Filostrato, from which a considerable part is translated literally.
- b. Parliament of Fowls (c. 1382).
Probably celebrates events of the courtship of Richard II and Anne of Bohemia (daughter of Emperor Charles IV), who were married, Jan., 1382. Shows both French and Italian influence.
- c. House of Fame (c. 1379).
Shows influence of French love allegory, of Dante, and of Virgil.

3. English Period (1385-1400).

- a. Legend of Good Women (c. 1385, and at various times).
Series of nine 'legends' (Cleopatra, Thisbe, Dido, Hypsipyle and Medea, Lucretia, Ariadne, Philomela, Phyllis, Hypermnestra), introduced by a Prologue based upon French love allegory.
- b. The Canterbury Tales. (See Outline X.)

III. PROSE WORKS OF CHAUCER.

1. Translation of Boethius' Consolation of Philosophy (c. 1380). (See Outline IV.)
2. A Treatise on the Astrolabe (1391).
3. Chaucer's Tale of Melibeus. (See Outline X.)
4. Parson's Tale. (See Outline X.)

OUTLINE X

Chaucer: The Canterbury Tales

I. PLAN OF THE CANTERBURY TALES.

1. Literary Parallels.
 - a. Boccaccio: Decameron.
 - b. John Gower: Confessio Amantis. (See Outline VIII.)
 - c. Giovanni Sercambi of Lucca: Novelle (c. 1375).
 - d. Proces of the Seven Sages.
2. 120 Tales Proposed. 24 written (not all finished).

I. SUGGESTED TABULATION OF THE CANTERBURY TALES.

1. First Day, April 17,—London to Dartford.
Knight. (Based upon Boccaccio's Teseide.)
Miller. (A fabliau.)
Reeve. (A fabliau.)
Cook. (Unfinished.)
2. Second Day, April 18,—Dartford to Rochester.
Man of Law. (Based upon Trivet's Anglo-Norman Chronicle.)
Shipman. (A fabliau.)
Prioress. (A legend.)
Chaucer, two tales: Sir Thopas (in verse), and Tale of Melibeus (in prose).
Monk. (Short stories of misfortunes of famous persons.)
Nun's Priest. (A beast fable.)
3. Third Day, April 19,—Rochester to Ospringe.
Physician. (Tale of Appius and Virginia.)
Pardoner. (A fabliau.)
Wife of Bath. (A fairy tale. Arthurian background.)
Friar. (A fabliau.)
Somnour. (A popular anecdote.)
Clerk. (From Petrarch's Latin rendering of a novella of Boccaccio.)
Merchant. (Tale of January and May.)
4. Fourth Day, April 20,—Ospringe to Canterbury.
Squire. (An unfinished romance.)
Franklin (A lai?)
Second Nun. (The legend of St. Cecilia.)
Canon's Yeoman. (A tale exposing alchemistic impostures.)
Manciple. (Based on Ovid's fable of Apollo and Coronis.)
Parson. (A prose sermon on the seven deadly sins.)

OUTLINE XI

Later Middle English Literature

I. IMITATORS OF CHAUCER.

1. English.

a. John Lydgate (c. 1370–c. 1450).

1. Troy Book. Translation into English verse of Guido delle Colonne's Latin Historia Troiana (1287). Incidental praise of Chaucer.

2. Fall of Princes. Adapted into English verse from Boccaccio's De Casibus Virorum Illustrium. See Chaucer's Monk's Tale.

3. Temple of Glass. See Chaucer's House of Fame.

4. Lives of Saints.

5. Story of Thebes. A continuation of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales.

b. Thomas Occleve (c. 1368–c. 1450).

1. La Male Regle (c. 1406). A poem of penitence.

2. Regiment of Princes (1412). Advice to Prince of Wales (afterward Henry V). Contains praise of Chaucer.

2. Scottish.

a. King James I (1394–1437).

The Kingis Quair ('The King's Book,' c. 1423). In the 7-line stanza, riming ababbcc, used by Chaucer in Troilus and elsewhere. Chaucerian phrases.

b. Robert Henryson (c. 1425–c. 1500).

1. Fables. 7-line stanza.

2. Testament of Cresseid. Sequel to Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde.

c. William Dunbar (c. 1460–c. 1530).

1. Golden Targe. Contains praise of Chaucer.

2. Lament for the Makers. Places Chaucer first on the roll of English poets.

3. The Thistle and the Rose. Theme is marriage of James IV and Margaret Tudor (1503). 7-line stanza.

II. THE END OF THE MIDDLE AGES.

1. Sir Thomas Malory. (See Outline XII.)

2. William Caxton (c. 1422–1491). Translator and printer.

After having engaged in trade, in translating, and in printing on Continent, set up his press (1476) in Westminster, near Westminster Abbey; here he printed some 71 works. His translation of the Recueil des Histoires de Troye of Raoul Lefevre,—the first book printed in English,—appeared about 1475, at Bruges. The first dated book printed in England is Dictes and Seyings of the Philosophers (1477).

3. John Skelton (c. 1460–1529). Tutor of Henry VIII.

a. The Book of Philip Sparrow. Lament for a pet sparrow. 'Skeltonian metre' consists of short lines, usually of three accented syllables, which rime in couplets, triplets, or quartets.

b. Bowge of Court. 7-line stanza.

c. Garland of Laurel. Allegory. Fundamental motives found in Chaucer's House of Fame and Prologue to Legend of Good Women.

4. Stephen Hawes (c. 1475–c. 1523).

a. Pastime of Pleasure. Allegorical, didactic poem. Although it is written largely in 7-line stanza and contains praise of Chaucer, it is not conspicuously influenced by Chaucer.

b. Example of Virtue. Allegorical, didactic poem.

OUTLINE XII

Malory's Morte d'Arthur

I. SIR THOMAS MALORY (C. 1400-1471).

Malory was 'a gentleman of an ancient house, and a soldier.' A knight, of Newbold Revell, Warwickshire. Served in French wars with Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, who was famous as representing the knightly ideal of the age. Member of parliament for Warwickshire in 1445. Conspicuous on the Lancastrian side in the Wars of the Roses.

II. MORTE D'ARTHUR. Published in 1485 by Caxton, who is probably responsible for the somewhat arbitrary divisions into books and chapters, and, perhaps, for certain marks of style.

1. General Contents.

Books I-V,—Merlin.

Books VI-VII, XI-XXI,—Lancelot.

Books VIII-X,—Tristram.

2. Nature of the compilation. A compendium translated and adapted, in great part, directly from French romances. The volume of the sources was about ten times that of Morte d'Arthur itself. The volume, contradictions, and inconsistencies of the sources led to conspicuous incongruities in the compendious translation. Certain of the best stories, such as Gawain and the Green Knight, are omitted. Originality shown in emphasis upon Arthur as central figure.

3. Literary characteristics.

a. Looseness of plot.

b. Grammatical looseness.

c. Rapidity of narration.

d. Vividness of description.

e. Graceful and musical style.

f. Vocabulary essentially English.

III. ARTHUR IN LATER ENGLISH LITERATURE.

1. Edmund Spenser (1552-1599. See Outline XIX).

The Faery Queen (1590-1596). Prefatory letter, to Sir Walter Raleigh, declares that the basis of the poem is 'The historye of King Arthure.' Arthur's adventures are unlike those recorded in earlier romances. Arthur appears infrequently, and only as a prince. The first quest (Book I) most nearly resembles earlier Arthurian stories.

2. Thomas Hughes. Misfortunes of Arthur (acted before Queen Elizabeth, 1588), earliest Arthurian play in English.

3. John Milton (1608-1674. See Outline XXXIII), in two Latin works speaks of his intention (never fulfilled) of writing an Arthurian epic.

4. John Dryden (1631-1700). King Arthur (acted 1691).

5. Percy: Reliques of Ancient English Poetry (1765) contains such Arthurian pieces as Sir Lancelot du Lake, The Marriage of Sir Gawain, and King Arthur's Death.

6. Alfred Tennyson (1809-1892). Idylls of the King (1842-1885).

7. Matthew Arnold (1822-1888). Tristram and Iseult (1852).

8. William Morris (1834-1896). Published in 1858 a volume containing four Arthurian poems: The Defence of Guenevere, King Arthur's Tomb, Sir Galahad, and The Chapel in Lyonesse.

9. Algernon Charles Swinburne (1837-1909). Tristram of Lyonesse (1882); The Tale of Balen (1896).

OUTLINE XIII

English and Scottish Popular Ballads

I. THE BALLAD.

A poem originating among the folk, and composed (though seldom written down) by them. Contains a narrative and a musical element; it is 'a song that tells a story.' The story is told impersonally by a narrator who has no role in it, and who adds no reflections upon it.

II. CHARACTERISTICS.

1. Subject Matter.

- a. Domestic relations: Willie's Lady, Clerk Saunders, Glasgerion, Earl Crawford, Fair Annie, Katherine Jaffray.
- b. Supernatural occurrences: Tam Lin, Kemp, Owyne, Sweet William's Ghost.
- c. History: The Battle of Otterburn, The Hunting of the Cheviot, Flodden Field.
- d. Outlawry: Adam Bell, and the ballads concerning Robin Hood.
- e. Riddles, and humorous incidents: Riddles Wisely Expounded, The Gardener, The Crafty Farmer.

2. Literary Characteristics.

- a. Refrain.
- b. Repetition.
- c. Dialogue.
- d. Absence of figurative language.

3. Metrical Form. Stanza and rime always present.

- a. Stanza may be a mere couplet of verses of four accents:

Húnger is shárper nór a thörn
And sháme is louder nór a hórñ.

- b. Stanza usually consists of four lines, of which the 1st and 3rd lines have four accents and the 2d and 4th three accents, and of which the rime-scheme is usually abcb:

Róbin stóde in Bérnesdále,
And lényd him tó a tré;
And bí hym stódē Lítell Jóhnn,
A góde yemán was hé.

III. NUMBER AND CHRONOLOGY.

Of the great number of true ballads in English and Scottish only 306 have been preserved. Of these 306 ballads only eleven are extant in MSS. older than the 17th century. Although our sources are somewhat modern, the ballads themselves are in many cases very ancient.

OUTLINE XIV

The Revival of Learning

I. HUMANISM. In literary history this term is applied definitely to that part of the Renaissance movement manifested in the revived study of classical antiquity, that is, to the Revival of Learning. The humanists, however, did not confine their activities to pure learning. Humanism began in Italy.

II. ITALIAN HUMANISTS.

1. Francesco Petrarch (1304-1374). Although most famous for his vernacular poems, wrote in classical Latin numerous works, such as: in prose, De Contemptu Mundi, De Vita Solitaria, Epistolae; in verse, an epic, Africa.
2. Giovanni Boccaccio (1313-1375). Best known for his Decameron and other works in the vernacular. Cultivated Latin classics, and wrote Genealogia Deorum, De Casibus Virorum Illustrium, De Montibus.
3. Fifteenth Century Group.
 - a. Poggio Bracciolini (1380-1459).
 - b. Enea Silvio (1405-64; Pope Pius II, 1458-64).
 - c. Lorenzo de' Medici (1449-1492).

III. ENGLISH HUMANISTS.

1. Earlier English Humanists.
 - a. Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester (1391-1447). Youngest son of Henry IV. Studied at Balliol College, Oxford. Collected books, patronized learning; summoned classical scholars from Italy.
 - b. John Tiptoft (d. 1470). Earl of Worcester.
2. Oxford Group of Humanists.
 - a. William Grocyn (1446-1519). Taught Greek at Oxford.
 - b. Thomas Linacre (1460-1524). Taught Greek at Oxford.
 - c. John Colet 1466-1519). Dean of St. Paul's, London. Lectured at Oxford on the Greek New Testament.
 - d. Desiderius Erasmus (1465-1536). Dutch humanist. Visited England 1498-99, 1510-14. Best known for his Adagio and Encomium Moriae.

IV. SIR THOMAS MORE.

1. Life. Born, 1478. Studied Greek and Latin under Linacre and Grocyn at Oxford. Practiced law. In Parliament 1503-04. 1515, ambassador to Flanders. 1516, Utopia published. Held various public offices. 1521, knighted. 1523, Speaker of House of Commons. 1529, succeeded Wolsey as Chancellor. 1532, opposed projected divorce of Henry VIII and Catherine. Refused to take oath under the Act of Supremacy and was committed to the Tower. Executed July 6, 1535.
2. English Works.
 - a. History of Richard III.
 - b. Miscellaneous Works.
3. Works in Latin.
 - a. Utopia, published in Latin, 1516. Translated into English by Ralph Robinson, 1551.
 - Bk. I,—direct criticism of English and European politics.
 - Bk. II,—the Utopian ideal.
 - b. Numerous controversial works.

OUTLINE XV

The Beginnings of the Renaissance

I. CLASSICAL TRANSLATIONS.

1. Virgil's Æneid, by Thomas Phaer (1558-1562).
2. Ovid's Metamorphoses, by Arthur Golding (1565-75).
3. Seneca's Tragedies, by Jasper Heywood and others (1581).
4. Plutarch's Lives, by Sir Thomas North (1579).

II. INFLUENCE OF ITALY.

1. On Manners. The English traveler. The ideal of the courtier.
2. On Literature. Through Dante, Petrarch, Boccaccio, Ariosto.
3. The Sonnet. 'The most ingenious device for musical expression of a single worthy thought.' (Morley.) Fourteen iambic pentameter lines.
 - a. Petrarch's Italian sonnet. Two stanzas, one of eight lines, called the octave; one of six lines, called the sestet. Riming system: a b b a a b b a c d e c d e. This form is now most common.
 - b. Surrey's English sonnet. Used by Shakspeare. Three quatrains and a couplet. System: a b a b c d c d e f e f g g.

III. ENGLISH RENAISSANCE POETS.

1. Sir Thomas Wyatt (1503?-1542). Courtier, ambassador. Introduced Italian sonnet into England. Author of—Certain Psalms . . . drawn into English meter—(pub. 1549) and many poems in Tottel's Miscellany (1557).
2. Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey (1517-1547). Courtier and soldier. Inventor of the English form of sonnet. Translated two books of Æneid. Forty poems in Tottel's Miscellany.
3. Thomas Sackville (1536-1608), created Lord Buckhurst, 1567, Earl of Dorset, 1604.
 - a. Induction to A Mirror for Magistrates (1563).
 - b. (With Thomas Norton) Gorboduc, Senecan tragedy in blank verse (acted 1561).
4. George Gascoigne (1525?-1577).
 - a. The Supposes (acted 1566). Prose comedy. Translation of Aristosto's I Suppositi.
 - b. Jocasta (acted 1566). Tragedy. From Euripides, through Latin and Italian.
 - c. Notes of Instruction (1575).
 - d. The Posies of George Gascoigne (1575).
 - e. The Steel Glass (1576).
5. Tottel's Miscellany, or Songs and Sonnets. Published June, 1557, by Richard Tottel. The first printed collection of lyrics in English. Went through six editions. First edition contained 40 poems by Wyatt, 96 by Surrey, 40 by Grimald, 95 by 'Uncertain authors.'

OUTLINE XVI

Sir Philip Sidney

I. LIFE.

Born 1554. Educated at Oxford without taking his degree. Traveling on the continent from 1572-75, he came under the intellectual influence of Hubert Languet, was in Paris during the massacre of St. Bartholomew's eve, and at Venice became acquainted with Tintoretto and Paolo Veronese. At Vienna studied horsemanship with John Peter Pugliano. Served in diplomatic posts, and studied politics; in 1577 and again in 1584 was entrusted with missions on the continent. From early life found increasing influence at court and among learned men. In 1583 Sidney was knighted, and in the same year married Frances Walsingham. In 1585 he became governor of Flushing, later was colonel in the protestant war in the low countries, was mortally wounded at Zutphen, and died October 17, 1586. Among 200 elegies, Spenser's Astrophel: A Pastoral Elegy, is the best.

II. SIDNEY AS A POET.

1. Astrophel and Stella, a collection of 108 sonnets and 11 songs. Published 1591 by Thomas Newman. Begun about 1580. Addressed to Penelope Devereux, daughter of the first earl of Essex; modeled after sonnets of the Earl of Surrey to Geraldine; they struck a deeper note after her marriage to Lord Rich in 1581 and probably continued until a little after Sidney's marriage to Frances Walsingham.

III. SIDNEY AS A WRITER OF PROSE.

1. Arcadia (1580-85; published, 1590). Highly intricate compound of chivalric romance and pastoral poetry. Name derived from the Arcadia of Jacopo Sannazaro. In content Sidney was influenced by the Spanish tales of chivalry of Amadis and Palmerin. The style is artificial, elaborate, and melodious.
2. An Apology for Poetry (1595). Written about 1580 as A Defense of Poesie, in retort to Gosson's School of Abuse and Apology for the School of Abuse (both 1579), in defense of poetry as a work of the imagination. It is in three parts:
 - a. Poetry as teaching virtuous action.
 - b. An enumeration of the forms of poetry.
 - c. An estimate of English poetry of the past and present.

OUTLINE XVII

The Elizabethan Lyric

I. LYRIC MISCELLANIES.

Early collections of popular lyrics, religious lyrics, spring songs, love plaints, and dramatic lyrics.

1. Tottel's Miscellany (1557). (See Outline XV.)
2. Paradise of Dainty Devices (1576), largely moral lyrics.
3. A Gorgeous Gallery of Gallant Inventions (1578).
4. A Handful of Pleasant Delights (1584).
5. The Phoenix' Nest (1593).
6. England's Helicon (1600), containing lyrics of Sidney, Spenser, Lodge, Peele, Barnfield.
7. Davison's Poetical Rhapsody (1602).

II. COLLECTIONS OF LYRICS OF INDIVIDUAL POETS.

1. Barnaby Googe: Eglogs, Epytaphes and Sonettes (1563).
2. Gascoigne: A Hundred Sundry Flowers (1572). Reprinted as The Posies of George Gascoigne (1575).
3. Spenser (1553-1599).
 - a. Shepherd's Calendar (1579).
 - b. Complaints (1591).
 - c. Daphnaida (1591).
 - d. Epithalamion (1595).
4. Michael Drayton (1563-1631).
 - a. Harmony of the Church (1591).
 - b. Shepherd's Garland (1593).
 - c. Idea (1594).
 - d. Poems Lyric and Pastoral (1605).
5. The Passionate Pilgrim (1599). A collection ascribed to Shakspeare, in which are found five of Shakspeare's sonnets, and Marlowe's 'Come live with me.'

III. THE SONNET SERIES.

First practised by Watson in his pedantic Hekatompathia (1582), the sonnet series gained great popularity and influence.

1. Sidney: Astrophel and Stella (1591).
2. Samuel Daniel: Delia (1592).
3. Constable: Diana (1592).
4. Barnes: Parthenophil and Parthenope (1593).
5. Spenser: Amoretti (1595).
6. Shakspeare: Sonnets (probably composed before 1594).

IV. LYRICS IN DRAMA AND ROMANCE.

Some of the best lyrics of the Elizabethan Age are found scattered through the works of dramatists and romancers.

1. Lyly: Alexander and Campaspe (1584),—
'Cupid and my Campaspe played.'
2. Peele: Arraignment of Paris (1584),—
'Fair and fair, and twice so fair.'
3. Greene: Menaphon (1589),—'Weep not, my wanton, smile upon my knee.'
4. Lodge: Rosalynde (1590),—'Love in my bosom like a bee.'
5. Sidney: Arcadia (1590),—'My true love hath my heart.'
6. Others in the works of Dekker, Kyd, Nash, and Shakspeare.

OUTLINE XVIII

Elizabethan Prose

I. PROSE BEFORE ELIZABETH'S ACCESSION.

1. Roger Ascham (1515-1568). Educated at St. John's College, Cambridge. Tutor to Princess Elizabeth. Latin Secretary to Queen Mary. Traveled in Germany. A student and teacher of the classics. His works:
 - a. Toxophilus (1544). A defense of archery written in the refined manner of Platonic dialogue.
 - b. The Schoolmaster (1570). Discusses problems of education, travel and things in general.

II. NOVELISTS.

1. John Lyly (1554?-1606). Educated at Magdalen College, Oxford. Assistant to Master of the Revels and petitioner for the Mastership. Attached to household of Lord Burleigh. Courtier, dramatist (See Outline XXII), novelist.

Novels.

 - a. Euphues, The Anatomy of Wit (1578).
 - b. Euphues and his England (1580).

Euphuism. A form of composition characterized by alliteration, antithesis, word play, references and similes drawn from natural history real and imaginary, and classical allusions. Supposed to be imitated from Guevara, of Spain, but largely the outgrowth of the affectation of the age.
2. Sir Philip Sidney (See Outline XVI).
3. Thomas Lodge (1558?-1625). Poet, dramatist, novelist, traveler. Rosalynde: Euphues Golden Legacy (1590). Written in the vein of Euphuism. Followed closely by Shakspeare in As You Like It.
4. Robert Greene (1558-1592). Dramatist, essayist, novelist, pamphleteer. Wrote much under the influence of Lyly.
 - a. Euphues, his Censure to Philautus (1587).
 - b. Pandosto, the Triumph of Time (1588). The source of Shakspeare's Winter Tale.
 - c. Menaphon, or Camilla's Alarum to Slumbering Euphues (1589).
5. Thomas Nash (1567-1601). Satirist, novelist, controversial writer. The Unfortunate Traveler, or the Life of Jack Wilton (1594). Realistic fiction.

III. VOYAGES.

Richard Hakluyt (1553-1616). Geographer and compiler. The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffics and Discoveries of the English Nation (1589).

IV. RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSIAL PROSE.

Richard Hooker (1554-1600). English divine. Educated at Oxford. Skilled in languages. Ecclesiastical Polity (1594-1618). An argument against enemies of the English Church. A Latinized style, rich in images, sonorous and a little artificial.

OUTLINE XIX

Edmund Spenser: Life and Works

I. LIFE.

Edmund Spenser, elder son of John Spenser, gentleman and cloth-maker, was born in East Smithfield, London, in 1552. He was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and Pembroke Hall, Cambridge (M.A. 1576). Through friendship with Gabriel Harvey Spenser in 1578 became a member of Leicester's household and became a friend of Sir Philip Sidney. In 1580 he was appointed Secretary to Arthur Grey, then recently made lord deputy of Ireland. With the exception of occasional visits he remained in Ireland until a month before his death. In 1588 Spenser removed to Kilcolman Castle near Cork. Twice he revisited London, first in 1589 to turn over to the printer the first three books of The Faery Queen and again in 1596, when the next three books were completed. On the first visit he remained two years and received distinguished attention from Queen Elizabeth. Spenser married Elizabeth Boyle in 1594. In October, 1598, Spenser's castle was burned in an uprising of the natives and with his family he was forced to flee to Cork. He went to London in December, 1598, and died there in poverty, January 16, 1599.

II. SPENSER AS A POET.

Spenser is known as the 'poets' poet.' His poetry is characterized by unusual sensuous and spiritual beauty. He was also an imitator and experimenter. As a student he contributed fourteen sonnet Visions from Du Bellay to The Theatre for Worlclings (1568). While in Leicester's household he experimented in classical measures. The Shepherd's Calendar and The Faery Queen show Spenser as an innovator in vocabulary. For the latter poem he invented the so-called Spenserian stanza.

III. SPENSER'S POEMS.

1. The Shepherd's Calendar (1579). In twelve pastoral eclogues glorifying England and Elizabeth. In reality a poetical miscellany of fables, satires and love verses, distinguished from one another in metrical form and content.
2. Complaints (1591). A collection of minor verse published on account of the success of The Faery Queen.
3. Astrophel (1595). An elegy on Sidney.
4. Colin Clouts Come Home Again (1595), penned upon his return to Ireland in 1591.
5. Amoretti and Epithalamion (1595). The first was written before his marriage; the second celebrates his marriage to Elizabeth Boyle.
6. The Faery Queen. First three books, 1590; 2nd three books, 1596. (See Outline XX.)
7. Prothalamion (1596).

OUTLINE XX

Spenser: The Faery Queen

I. INFLUENCES ON SPENSER IN WRITING THE FAERY QUEEN.

1. The Romances of Chivalry.
 - a. Malory's Morte D'Arthur.
 - b. Amadis of Gaul.
 - c. Ariosto's Orlando Furioso.
 - d. Tasso's Jerusalem Delivered.
2. Didactic Allegories.
 - a. Roman de la Rose.
 - b. Dante's The Divine Comedy.
 - c. The Visions of Langland.
 - d. Hampole's Prick of Conscience.
 - e. Robert of Brunne's Handling Sin.
 - f. Chaucer's Parliament of Birds, etc.
 - g. Sackville's Induction to A Mirror for Magistrates.
3. Classical Influence of the Philosophies of Plato and Aristotle.

II. THE PLAN OF THE FAERY QUEEN.

1. The Large Structure. In Spenser's prefatory letter he indicates that The Faery Queen is to be in 12 books, that Arthur is to be the central figure, and that each book is to represent one of the 12 private moral virtues as devised by Aristotle. Only six of the 12 books were completed.
 - Book 1, Red Cross Knight: Holiness.
 - Book 2, Sir Guyon: Temperance.
 - Book 3, Britomarte: Chastity.
 - Book 4, Cambel and Triamond: Friendship.
 - Book 5, Sir Artegall: Justice.
 - Book 6, Calidore: Courtesy.
2. The Allegory. Spenser's allegory is involved and inconsistent. There are three types:
 - a. Moral allegory, representing the struggles of the Virtues and Vices, thinly veiled under the names of the characters.
 - b. Political allegory. Directed primarily to the glory of Queen Elizabeth. In this allegory Arthur stands for Leicester, Sir Latyrane for Sir John Perrot, Queen Mary for Duessa. Events alluded to are the St. Bartholomew's Eve massacre, the Armada, the troubles in Ireland.
 - c. Religious allegory. Treating the contests among the English Reformed Church, The Church of England, the Roman Church, Paganism and Atheism.

III. THE SPENSERIAN STANZA.

Perhaps a modification of the linked quatrain stanza, used in The Shepherd's Calendar by the addition of a running Alexandrine (a line of twelve syllables) after the second quatrain. (a b a b b c b c c.)

IV. SPENSERIAN LANGUAGE.

Spenser affected the archaic in language, pronunciation and grammar. Examples: afoore, then[than] fond[found], prease. Plurals of nouns in ès: woundès, worldès; plural and infinitive in verbs in en: been, doen, marchen, to looken, to keepen.

OUTLINE XXI

The Early Drama

I. RELIGIOUS AND DIDACTIC DRAMA.

1. Church Plays (beginning in the 10th century). Short dialogues in Latin delivered as part of the liturgy, chiefly at Easter, Christmas and Epiphany.
2. Mystery Plays (English). Substantially comprised in four Cycles of the 14th and 15th centuries:
 - a. Chester Plays (25 pageants).
 - b. Coventry Plays, or Ludus Coventriae (43 pageants).
 - c. York Plays (48 pageants).
 - d. Towneley Plays (32 pageants).
3. Morality Plays, or Moralities (15th and 16th centuries).
 - a. Universal moralities.
Castle of Perseverance.
Mankind.
Everyman.
 - b. Limited moralities.
Hycke-Scorner.
Wit and Science.
4. Interludes.
John Heywood (fl. 1520-35), attached to the court of Henry VIII. Some of his plays are didactic and some purely farcical.
 - a. The Play of the Weather.
 - b. The Play of Love.
 - c. The Merry Play between Johan the Husband, Tyb his Wife, and Sir John the Priest.
 - d. The Four PP.
 - e. The Merry Play between the Pardoner and the Friar, the Curate and Neighbor Pratt.

II. THE TRANSITION TO THE REGULAR DRAMA.

1. Comedy.
 - a. Domestic comedy in verse. Gammer Gurton's Needle (1552-53).
 - b. Classical comedy in verse. Influence of Plautus and Terence.
Thersites (1537).
Ralph Roister Doister (c. 1553).
Jack Juggler (1553-1558).
 - c. Prose comedy (See George Gascoigne, Outline XV).
2. Tragedy. Influenced by Seneca.
Gorboduc, or Ferrex and Porrex (1562), by Thomas Norton and Thomas Sackville. Blank verse.
3. Historical Plays.
 - a. Bale: King John (before 1548).
 - b. The Troublesome Reign of King John (in print by 1591).

OUTLINE XXII

Court and School Plays

I. DRAMATIC COMPANIES.

Until 1587, sixteenth century drama was closely connected with the court. Early actors at court were Children of the Chapel Royal and the Boys of St. Paul's. Later professional companies under patronage of great nobles performed at court and in public theaters.

II. EARLY PLAYHOUSES.

Up to 1576 professional performances had been held in the inn yards. The public theaters were built beyond the city jurisdiction as follows:

1. The Theater, erected 1576 in Finsbury Fields by James Burbage.
2. The Curtain, built soon afterward, in the same region.
3. The Rose, erected 1592 on the Bankside.
4. The Swan, erected 1594-98 on the Bankside.
5. The Globe, erected 1599 on the Bankside.

III. COLLEGE PLAYS.

1. Latin Tragedies.
 - a. Richardus Tertius, by Legge (1579).
 - b. Dido, by Gager (1583).
2. Comedies. Largely satirical.
 - a. Latin.
Pedantius (1581).
Bellum Grammaticale (1581).
 - b. English.
The Pilgrimage to Parnassus (1598).
The Return from Parnassus (2 parts, 1601, 1602).

IV. JOHN LYLY AND COURT DRAMA. (See also Outline XVIII.) Lyly's plays:

1. Campaspe (1584).
2. Sapho and Phao (1584).
3. Endimion (1591).
4. Gallathea (1592).
5. Midas (1592).
6. Mother Bombie (1594).
7. The Woman in the Moon (1597).
8. Love's Metamorphosis (1601).

All of these plays are in prose with occasional intermixture of lyric verse, except The Woman in the Moon, which is in blank verse. All are on pastoral or mythological subjects with the exception of Mother Bombie. Many of them show thinly veiled political allegory appropriate to current events. The style of all is strongly marked with Euphuism.

OUTLINE XXIII

Kyd, Marlowe, Greene, Peele

- I. THOMAS KYD (1558-1595?). Son of a scrivener. Educated at Merchant Taylors' School. In 1570 entered the service of a lord, perhaps Earl of Essex. Translated (1588) The Housholder's Philosophy from Tasso, and Cornelia from Garnier. Introduced the popular Revenge Tragedy, a type marked by strong influence from Seneca, much bloodshed, usually on the stage, a revenge motive, often by the use of the ghost, and by madness.
 1. The Spanish Tragedy (performed about 1586).
 2. The earlier Hamlet (performed about 1588).
- II. CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE (1564-1593). The most considerable dramatic poet before Shakspeare. May have collaborated in early plays of Shakspeare. Born at Canterbury; educated at King's School, Canterbury, and at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. May have served as soldier in the Low Countries. Was a free-thinker. Lived a wild life. Died as result of wound received in tavern affray at Deptford, June, 1593. Plays (dates those of performance):
 1. Tamburlaine (parts 1 and 2, 1587).
 2. Dr. Faustus (1588).
 3. The Jew of Malta (1589).
 4. Edward II (c. 1590). Chronicle play.
- III. ROBERT GREENE (1558?-1592). Born at Norwich. Educated St. John's College, Cambridge. Wrote romances, lyrics, plays, and controversial pamphlets. Lived an unhappy and irregular life. On his deathbed wrote A Groatsworth of Wit, in which is found the first contemporary allusion to Shakspeare. Plays (dates those of performance):
 1. Alphonsus of Arragon (1587).
 2. A Looking-Glass for London of England (written in conjunction with Lodge c. 1587).
 3. Orlando Furioso (1588).
 4. Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay (1589).
 5. James IV (1590).
 6. George-a-Greene (questionable authorship; 1590).
- IV. GEORGE PEELE (1558-1597).
 1. The Arraignment of Paris (1584). Poetic drama.
 2. The Battle of Alcazar (c. 1594). Tragedy showing Senecan influence.
 3. The Old Wives' Tale (1595).
 4. David and Bethsabe (1599).

OUTLINE XXIV

Life of William Shakspeare

William Shakspeare was born at Stratford-on-Avon, and was baptized April 26, 1564. He was the first son and the third child of John Shakspeare, a freeholder, in 1568 High Bailiff of Stratford, and Mary Arden Shakspeare. Shakspeare probably attended the Stratford Grammar School; reminiscences of this school are suspected in his early play Love's Labor's Lost. Tradition assigns many vocations to Shakspeare's youth; one legend holds that he 'exercised his father's trade' of butcher. After the young Shakspeare's eighth year his father's affairs, which had before flourished, began to decline.

Early in life (in 1582 or early 1583) William Shakspeare married Anne Hathaway, a woman eight years his senior. In 1583 his first daughter was born. Hamnet and Judith, twins, were born early in 1585. Well credited tradition tells that about this time Shakspeare was prosecuted for poaching in the park of Sir Thomas Lucy at Charlecote. Allusion may be made to this experience in Merry Wives of Windsor and 2 Henry IV.

Shakspeare's knowledge of the stage may have begun in 1587, in which year five companies of actors gave theatrical performances at Stratford. After 1585 nothing is heard of him until 1592, and it is supposed that he spent a large portion of these seven years in theatrical apprenticeship in London. He was probably attached to Burbage's house 'The Theater,' and may early have joined the company of the Earl of Leicester. Shakspeare acted in Jonson's Every Man in His Humor (1598) and Sejanus (1603); possibly also he played the part of the Ghost in Hamlet and of Adam in As You Like It.

The earliest allusion to Shakspeare is seen in Robert Greene's tract A Groatsworth of Wit (1592) in the words, 'the only Shake-scene in a country' in which he appears to be condemned as an adapter of other men's plays. In 1593 he dedicated Venus and Adonis, and in 1594 Lucrece, to the Earl of Southampton. In 1598 Francis Meres in the Wit's Treasury accounts Shakspeare among the English the most excellent in both comedy and tragedy. Among poems Meres mentions Venus and Adonis, Lucrece, and Sonnets; among comedies he mentions The Two Gentlemen of Verona, The Comedy of Errors, Love's Labor's Lost, Love's Labors Won (All's Well that Ends Well), Midsummer Night's Dream, and The Merchant of Venice; among tragedies he mentions Richard the Second, Richard the Third, Henry the Fourth, King John, Titus Andronicus, and Romeo and Juliet.

There are other evidences of Shakspeare's early success. In 1596 application was made in the name of John Shakspeare for the grant of a coat-of-arms. In 1597 Shakspeare purchased New Place, the largest house in Stratford. He probably spent the last five years of his life in this house, his work as a playwright being practically complete after The Tempest (1611). Shakspeare died April 23, 1616, and was buried in Stratford. He left 350 pounds in money, much real estate and personal property, a fortune in the time of Elizabeth. An authentic portrait by Martin Droeshout is to be found in the First Folio (1623).

OUTLINE XXV

Sources of Shakspeare's Plays

I. SHAKSPEARE AND CLASSICAL AUTHORS.

1. Latin.

- a. Ovid, Virgil, Seneca, probably well known in the original Latin.
- b. Pliny was possibly known in Holland's translation.
- c. Plautus was possibly known in the translation of the Menæchmi by 'W. W.'
- d. Many references to Latin authors in Shakspeare's plays should be ascribed to his use of Lyly's Latin Grammar at school.

2. Greek.

- a. Plutarch's Lives was known to Shakspeare in North's translation (1579, 1595). Upon North's Plutarch are based entirely or in part: Julius Cæsar; Coriolanus; Antony and Cleopatra.
- b. Homer was known either in Hall's translation (1581) or Chapman's (1598).

II. CONTINENTAL SOURCES.

1. Montaigne's Essays were known in Florio's translation (1603).
2. Boccaccio's Novels were known through Painter's Palace of Pleasure. Upon a story in this was based All's Well that Ends Well. From Boccaccio is derived indirectly, perhaps through Holinshed and an old play, the story of Cymbeline.
3. Cinthio's Hecatommithi provides the story of Othello, probably an old play.
4. Jorge de Montemayor's La Diana, in translation by Bartholomew Yong (1598) provides the story of The Two Gentlemen of Verona.

III. ENGLISH SOURCES.

1. English Fiction.

- a. Arthur Brooke's poem Romeus and Juliet (1562) provides the story of Romeo and Juliet.
- b. Thomas Lodge's romance, Rosalynde (1590), provides story of As You Like It.
- c. Robert Greene's Pandosto (1588) provides story of Winter's Tale.

2. English Historical Compendiums.

Raphael Holinshed's Chronicles. Upon these are mainly based:
King Henry VI. (3 parts.)
King Richard III.
King Henry VIII.
King Henry IV. (2 parts.)
King Henry V.

3. Old English Plays. Upon these are based King John, King Lear, The Taming of the Shrew, Measure for Measure, and possibly Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Timon of Athens, and Twelfth Night.

OUTLINE XXVI

Shakspere's Works: Poems and Comedies

I. POEMS.

1. Venus and Adonis (printed, 1593). Based upon Ovid's Metamorphoses and Lodge's Scilla's Metamorphosis (1589). Written in six line stanzas.
2. The Rape of Lucrece (printed, 1594). Based upon Ovid, Chaucer, and Samuel Daniel's Complaint of Rosamond (1592). Written in rime royal and like Venus and Adonis dedicated to the Earl of Southampton.
3. Sonnets. Of these 154 are extant outside the plays. The majority were probably written in 1593 and 1594. They were printed surreptitiously by Thomas Thorpe in 1609.
4. A Passionate Pilgrim (printed, 1599). A collection containing five of Shakspere's sonnets.
5. The Phoenix and the Turtle (printed, 1601). A collection containing 13 four line stanzas said to be by Shakspere.
6. A Lover's Complaint. Printed with the sonnets, 1609.

II. COMEDIES.

1. Early Comedy. Shakspere's craftsman period. Plays marked by artifice, mistaken identity, much rime and verbal conceit.
 - a. Love's Labor's Lost (written, c. 1591).
 - b. The Comedy of Errors (written, c. 1591).
 - c. The Two Gentlemen of Verona (written, c. 1591).
 - d. A Midsummer Night's Dream (written, c. 1595).
2. The Middle Period of Comedy.
The Merchant of Venice (acted, c. 1596).
3. Shakspere's Maturity in Comedy.
 - a. A rough and boisterous type verging on farce. Not in his best style.
The Taming of the Shrew (written, c. 1596).
The Merry Wives of Windsor (acted, c. 1598).
 - b. An idyllic comedy of refined emotion.
Much Ado About Nothing (acted, 1599).
As You Like It (acted, 1599).
Twelfth Night, or What You Will (acted, 1599).
 - c. The comedy of sober thought, of irony and disillusion.
All's Well That Ends Well (written, c. 1602).
Troilus and Cressida (written, 1603).
Measure for Measure (acted, 1604).
4. The Final Period, marking the last stage of Shakspere's dramatic evolution. Romantic comedy of philosophy and reconciliation.
 - a. Pericles, Prince of Tyre (printed, 1608).
 - b. Cymbeline (acted, 1610-11).
 - c. The Winter's Tale (acted, 1611).
 - d. The Tempest (written, 1611).

OUTLINE XXVII

Shakspeare's Works: Histories and Tragedies

I. HISTORIES.

1. Pseudo-Shakspearean.

Henry VI. Part I (acted, 1592). An early type of the plays of blood and bombast. Barely touched by Shakspeare. Compare with Titus and Andronicus under Tragedies.

2. The Marlowe-Shakspeare Group.

Showing the influence of Marlowe in substance, structure, and style. Marlowe was probably chiefly concerned in the first two, the third was written by Shakspeare in Marlowe's manner.

a. The Second Part of Henry the Sixth (acted, 1592).

b. The Third Part of Henry the Sixth (acted, 1592).

c. Richard III (1593).

3. Histories of the Middle Period. Shakspeare's assumption of an individual method. All save the first have an admixture of comedy (cf. comedy of this period, Outline XXVI), and the last three belong to the Falstaff group (cf. Merry Wives of Windsor).

a. King John (adapted, 1594).

b. Richard II (printed, 1597).

c. The First Part of Henry the Fourth (written, 1597).

d. The Second Part of Henry the Fourth (written, 1597).

e. Henry the Fifth (acted, 1599).

II. TRAGEDIES.

1. Pseudo-Shakspearean Tragedy: play of revenge and blood. Only partially by Shakspeare.

Titus Andronicus (acted, 1594).

2. Early Tragedy. Tragedy of youthful passion. (cf. Shakspeare's early poems.) Romeo and Juliet (written, 1591).

3. Tragedy of Maturity of Method. Separated from Romeo and Juliet by almost entire history group and most of the comedies. The tragedy of thought.

a. Julius Cæsar (acted, 1601).

b. Hamlet (acted, 1602).

4. The Last Phase of Tragedy. Tragedy of personal flaw or fault in character: ambition, ingratitude, lust, etc.

a. Othello, The Moor of Venice (acted, 1604).

b. King Lear (acted, 1606).

c. Macbeth (written, 1606).

d. Timon of Athens (written, c. 1607).

e. Antony and Cleopatra (written, 1608).

f. Coriolanus (written, c. 1609).

OUTLINE XXVIII

Jonson and Chapman

I. BEN JONSON.

1. Life. Ben Jonson was born in 1572. He was educated in Westminster School, was a brick-layer, soldier in the Low Countries and actor. He began writing for the stage about 1595, and was himself an actor, possibly in the pseudo-Kydean play Jeronimo. Killed a performer in a duel, was imprisoned and released through 'benefit of clergy.' Attacked Marston and Dekker, brother dramatists, in Cynthia's Revels and The Poetaster. Was attacked in turn in Dekker's Satiromastix. With Chapman and Marston offended King James by reflections on the Scottish nation in Eastward Hoe. Regained favor and was appointed laureate. In later life Jonson knew many vicissitudes of fortune. Died August 6, 1637. Buried in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey.
2. Characteristics as a Dramatist. Jonson announced in his first play, Every Man in his Humor, his purpose to revolutionize dramatic art. Repudiates the dramatic ideas of Shakspeare. Bases his plays upon an elaboration of eccentric character and on classical rather than romantic idea. Plays marked by great learning, satire, warfare on pretenders, and lack of action. Wrote some fifty plays, mostly masques and interludes.
3. Jonson's Works.
 - a. Comedy of Humors.
Every Man in His Humor (1598).
Every Man out of His Humor (1599).
 - b. Realistic Comedy.
Volpone (1606); Epicæne (1609); The Alchemist (1610); Bartholomew Fair (1614).
 - c. Classical Tragedy.
Sejanus (1603); Catiline (1611).
 - d. Pastoral Drama: The Sad Shepherd (1634).
 - e. Masque: The Masque of Queens (1609); The Golden Age Restored (1615); Oberon (1611).

II. GEORGE CHAPMAN (1559-1634). Translator of Homer. Friend of Spenser, Jonson, and Shakspeare. Undramatic but weird and poetic.

1. Comedies.
 - a. The Blind Beggar of Alexandria (1598).
 - b. All Fools (1605).
 - c. Monsieur D'Olive (1605).
 - d. Eastward Hoe (1605). With Jonson and Marston.
 - e. The Gentleman Usher (1606).
2. Tragedies.
 - a. The Tragedy of Charles Duke of Byron (1608).
 - b. The Revenge of Bussy D'Ambois (1613).

OUTLINE XXIX

The Drama to the Closing of the Theatres

- I. JOHN WEBSTER. Life obscure. Unmatched outside of Shakspeare in pathos and tragic intensity.
 1. The White Devil (1608 acted).
 2. The Duchess of Malfi (acted, 1616).
 3. Appius and Virginia (acted, 1639).
- II. THOMAS MIDDLETON (1570?-1627).
 1. The Changeling (with Rowley) (acted, 1623).
 2. The Spanish Gypsy (acted, 1623).
 3. Women beware Women (1657).
- III. THOMAS DEKKER (1570-1639?). A prolific and realistic playwright.
 1. The Shoemaker's Holiday (1600).
 2. Old Fortunatus (1600).
 3. Satiromastix (1602). Directed against Jonson.
- IV. BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER.
 1. Francis Beaumont (1584-1616). Son of a judge. Studied at Oxford and for law. Friend of Jonson and member of the Mermaid Tavern group.
 2. John Fletcher (1579-1625). Son of an ecclesiastic. Educated at Cambridge. Had share with Shakspeare in Henry VIII and Two Noble Kinsmen. Died of plague. Between Beaumont and Fletcher there were composed 52 plays, a masque, and minor poems. It is now almost impossible to allocate authorship.
Plays by Beaumont and Fletcher:
 - a. Philaster (acted, 1608).
 - b. The Maid's Tragedy (acted, 1609).
 - c. The Knight of the Burning Pestle (acted, 1610-11).
 - d. A King and No King (licensed, 1611).
- V. JOHN FORD (1586-1640).
 1. The Witch of Edmonton (1621). With Dekker.
 2. The Broken Heart (1633). Last great romantic tragedy before 1642.
- VI. DOMESTIC TRAGEDY. A realistic tragedy based on contemporary crime or sensational event.
 1. Thomas Heywood: A Woman Killed With Kindness (acted, 1603).
 2. Anonymous: Arden of Feversham (1592); A Warning for Fair Women (1598); A Yorkshire Tragedy (1605).
- VII. OTHER PLAYS. Marston: Antonio's Revenge (1602); Chettle: Tragedy of Hoffman (1631); Massinger: A New Way to Pay Old Debts (1633).

OUTLINE XXX

The English Bible

I. TRANSLATIONS BEFORE MODERN TIMES.

1. Bede in old age translated St. John.
2. Aldhelm made a version of the Psalter.
3. King Alfred translated the Four Evangelists.
4. Ælfric translated the first seven books of the Old Testament.
All of these were paraphrases from the Vulgate, the Latin version of Scriptures made by St. Jerome at close of 4th century.

II. TRANSLATIONS OF MODERN TIMES.

1. John Wyclif (1324-1384). 'The last of the Schoolmen and first of the Reformers.'
Wyclif was assisted by:
 - a. Nicholas of Hereford who translated the first part to the third book of Baruch;
 - b. John Purvey, Wyclif's curate, who, in 1388, revised the translation. Many marks of Wyclif's bible remain in the translated Bible of to-day.
2. William Tyndale (1484-1536). 'He was singularly addicted to the study of the Scriptures.' (Foxe.)
 - a. In 1526 issued from Germany a translation of the New Testament.
 - b. In 1530 issued translation of the Pentateuch.
 - c. In 1531 issued translation of Book of Jonah.
The nature of Tyndale's work is indicated by the fact that the King James' Version includes what is practically a modernization of Tyndale's New Testament.
Revisions of Tyndale's Bible occur under the names of:
 - a. Matthew's Bible, by John Rogers (1537);
 - b. The Great Bible, prepared by Cranmer (1539);
 - c. Richard Taverner's Bible (based on Matthew, 1539).
3. Miles Coverdale published in 1535 the first English version of the whole Bible.
4. Other Translations.
The Geneva Bible (1557), The Bishop's Bible (1568), and The Douay Bible (1582-1610) have secondary literary value.
5. The King James Bible, undertaken 1604, an original work of great scholarship, has held its place as one of the finest products of English literature.

OUTLINE XXXI

Seventeenth Century Prose

I. THE SCIENTIFIC MOVEMENT.

1. Francis Bacon (1561-1626). Son of Nicholas Bacon. His character: intellectual predominating over the moral. Anti-Aristotelian philosopher. He places observation and experiment in place of speculation. His projected reconstruction of the sciences, of the arts, and of human knowledge. Prose works:
 - a. Essays (1597; 1612; 1625). Shrewd, terse, politic, devoid of sentiment.
 - b. The Advancement of Learning (1605). Represents a summary of the world's knowledge.
 - c. Novum Organum (1620). Represents Bacon's scientific inductive method.
2. Thomas Browne (1605-1682). Prose marked by learning, eloquence, and rhythm.
 - a. Religio Medici (1642); b. Urn Burial (1658).
3. Robert Burton (1577-1640).
Anatomy of Melancholy (1621). Encyclopædic learning, conceits, fancy in the garb of science.

II. PROBLEMS OF GOVERNMENT AND EDUCATION. Treated in a heavy and scientific manner. Some controversial, as related to the political activities of the times.

1. Thomas Hobbes (1588-1679).
 - a. De Corpore Politico (1650).
 - b. Leviathan (1651). Defense of pure monarchy.
2. John Milton (1608-1674). (See Outline XXXIII.)
3. John Locke (1632-1704): Essay concerning Human Understanding (1690).

III. CHARACTER WRITING.

1. Joseph Hall (1574-1656): Characters of Virtues and Vices (1608).
2. Thomas Overbury (1581-1613): Characters (1614).
3. John Earle (1601-1665): Microcosmographie (1628).

IV. THEOLOGICAL WRITERS.

1. Jeremy Taylor (1613-1667).
 - a. The Liberty of Prophesying (1647).
 - b. Holy Living (1650); Holy Dying (1651).
2. Thomas Fuller (1608-1661).
 - a. The Holy State (1642).
 - b. Worthies of England (1662).
3. John Bunyan. (See Outline XXXVII.)

V. PASTORAL PROSE.

1. Izaak Walton (1593-1683): The Compleat Angler (1653).

VI. CRITICISM. John Dryden. (See Outline XXXVI.)

VII. DIARISTS.

- Samuel Pepys (1633-1703): Diary (1660-69; deciphered and published, 1828).
John Evelyn (1620-1706): Diary (1641-1706; printed, 1818).

OUTLINE XXXII

The Seventeenth Century Lyric

- I. THE METAPHYSICAL IMPULSE. John Donne (1573-1631) influenced all other poets of the century. Poetry marked by subtlety of thought, richness in scientific and philosophical conceits, fantastic expressions, and far-fetched analogies and metaphors.
- II. THE CAVALIER LYRISTS. Their poems marked by facility and finish, grace and melody.
 1. Thomas Carew (1598-1639).
 2. Richard Lovelace (1618-1658).
 3. Sir John Suckling (1609-1641).
- III. THE PASTORAL POETS. In their works a sincere feeling for nature was expressed in the conventional formulas of the pastoral tradition of Spenser.
 1. William Browne (1590-1645).
 - a. Britannia's Pastorals (1613-16).
 - b. Shepherd's Pipe (1614).
 2. George Wither (1588-1667).
Fair Virtue (1622).
 3. Phineas Fletcher (1582-1650).
The Purple Island (1633).
- IV. DEVOTIONAL POETS. Marked by the aristocratic ease of the Cavalier poets, and by the conceits of the metaphysical order of poetry.
 1. The Pastoral Group.
 - a. Robert Herrick (1591-1674).
Hesperides (1648).
Noble Numbers (1648).
 - b. Andrew Marvell (1621-1678).
 2. The Religious Group.
 - a. Giles Fletcher, the younger (1588-1623).
Christ's Victory and Triumph (1610).
 - b. George Herbert (1593-1633).
 - c. Richard Crashaw (1613-1650?).
 - d. Henry Vaughan (1622-1695).
- V. THE CLASSICAL REACTION.
 1. Edmund Waller (1606-1687). First successfully used the closed couplet later adopted by Dryden.
 - a. Poems (1645, 1664).
 - b. Divine Love (1685).
 2. Sir John Denham (1615-1669).
Cooper's Hill (1642).
 3. Abraham Cowley (1618-1667).
The Mistress (1647).
Also writer of plays and of a biblical epic, Davidis (1656).

OUTLINE XXXIII

Milton: Life and Works

I. LIFE OF JOHN MILTON. Born in London, December 9, 1608. After attending St. Paul's School, London, went to Christ's College, Cambridge (1625-29). Revoked his intention of taking holy orders, and gave himself up to literature. 1632-38, in studious retirement at Horton. Read classical authors and frequently visited London to take lessons in mathematics and music. 1638-39, traveled on the Continent, chiefly in Italy, where he was received as a distinguished man of letters. Upon his return to England he settled in London as a writer and private tutor. In 1643 married Mary Powell. Published numerous tracts on political, social, and religious subjects. 1649-60, Latin Secretary to the Council of State under the Commonwealth. By 1653 had become totally blind. At the Restoration (1660) was under arrest for a time. From 1660 until his death (1674) lived in literary retirement in London.

II. WORKS.

1. Early Poems.

- a. On the Morning of Christ's Nativity (written, 1629).
- b. Sonnet on His being Arrived at the Age of Twenty-three (written, 1631).
- c. Arcades (c. 1630-3).
- d. L'Allegro (written, 1634).
- e. Il Penseroso (written, 1634).
- f. Comus (acted at Ludlow Castle, 1634).
- g. Lycidas (elegy on the death of Edward King, drowned 1637).

2. Prose.

- a. An Apology for Smectymnus (1642). An argument against episcopacy, in support of those writers who, under the name 'Smectymnus,' had replied to Bishop Hall's Humble Remonstrance (1641).
- b. The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce (1643). A defense of divorce, written as the result of his unhappy marriage (1643) with Mary Powell.
- c. Areopagitica: A Speech for the Liberty of Unlicensed Printing (1644).
- d. Tractate on Education (1644).
- e. The Tenure of Kings and Magistrates (1649). Expounds the right of a people to resist the oppression of a monarch.
- f. Eikonoklastes (1649). Directed against Eikon Basilike, a glorification of Charles I that had appeared immediately after his execution (1649).

3. Later Poems.

- a. Sonnets.
- b. Paradise Lost (1667, 1674). (See Outline XXXIV.)
- c. Paradise Regained (1671).
- d. Samson Agonistes (1671).

OUTLINE XXXIV

Milton: Paradise Lost

I. PUBLICATION.

Published, 1667, in 10 Books. Second edition, 1674, in 12 Books. (Bks vii and x of 1st edition divided into 2 books each.)

II. POSSIBLE SOURCES.

Andreini: Adamo (1613). Scriptural drama in Italian recounting many of the Scriptural occurrences recounted in Paradise Lost.

Vondel: Lucifer (1654). Tragedy in Dutch recounting the rebellion of the angels.

Grotius: Adamus Exul (1601), in Latin.

A large number of poems on kindred subjects were published during the 1st half of 17th century, especially in Italian.

III. GENESIS OF THE POEM.

By 1642 Milton had made several outlines for a poem, in the form of a Greek tragedy, on the subject of the Fall of Man. After having been laid aside for a term of years, the work was resumed about 1658, in the form of an epic. (Milton had become blind about 1653). The poem was substantially complete about 1663.

IV. COSMOGRAPHY.

The astronomical system represented in the poem is not our present Copernican system, but the older Ptolemaic system. According to the Ptolemaic system the earth is the fixed center of the universe, and the apparent motions of the other celestial bodies are caused by the real revolutions of successive heavens, or spheres, enclosing the central earth at different distances.

V. ARGUMENT.

Book I. Hell. The Fallen Angels.

Book II. The Consultation in Hell. Satan's Departure for the Earth.

Book III. Heaven. Satan is seen flying towards the Earth. The Consultation in Heaven.

Book IV. The Garden of Eden. The Arrival of Satan.

Book V. 'God to render man inexcusable sends Raphael to admonish him.'

Book VI. Raphael's account of the battle in Heaven. Triumph of the Messiah and Expulsion of Satan.

Book VII. Raphael's account of the Creation.

Book VIII. Raphael and Adam discuss the Cosmogony. Adam relates what he remembers since his own creation.

Book IX. The Temptation and Fall.

Book X. The Judgment of God. The Triumph of Satan. The Remorse of Adam and Eve.

Book XI. God sends Michael to expel them from Eden. He prophesies the History of Man till the Flood.

Book XII. Michael continues the History of Man to the second Advent. The Expulsion from Paradise.

OUTLINE XXXV

The Restoration Drama

I. THE FIRST RESTORATION PLAY.

Jacobean drama had come to an end in 1642. In 1656 Sir William D'Avenant (1605-1668) a Royalist and the poet laureate erected a private stage and produced thereon The Siege of Rhodes. In this entertainment dramatic machinery was for the first time introduced from France. In 1660 D'Avenant and Killegrew secured a patent for the first Restoration playhouse. On this stage, music, scenery and the curtain were used as on the modern stage.

II. HEROIC PLAYS. A type of play specifically defended by Dryden and practised by him from 1664-1678. It is characterized by bombast and written in rimed couplets.

1. Roger Boyle, Earl of Orrery (1621-1679).
Mustapha, the Son of Solymán the Magnificent (1665).
2. Dryden (see Outline XXXVI).
 - a. The Indian Emperor (1665).
 - b. Almanzor and Almahide, or the Conquest of Granada (1670).
3. Nathaniel Lee (1653?-1692).
Nero, Emperor of Rome (1675).
4. Thomas Otway (1652-1685).
Don Carlos (1675).

III. TRAGEDY.

1. Thomas Otway.
 - a. The Orphan (1680).
 - b. Venice Preserved (1682). 'The best tragedy since Shakspeare.'
2. Dryden.
All for Love, or The World Well Lost (1678).
3. Nicholas Rowe (1673-1718).
Jane Shore (1714); Lady Jane Gray (1715).

IV. THE COMEDY OF MANNERS. Prose comedies characterized by the extreme of French influence, particularly from Molière. The plays are witty, worldly and licentious. They are also keenly observant of contemporary manners, and precise in diction and structure.

1. Sir George Etherege (1634?-1691).
 - a. The Comical Revenge (1664).
 - b. The Man of Mode (1676).
2. Sir Charles Sedley (1639-1701).
The Mulberry Garden (1668).
3. William Wycherly (1640-1715).
 - a. The Country Wife (acted, 1673).
 - b. The Plain Dealer (acted, 1674).
4. William Congreve (1670-1729).

- IV. CHARACTERISTICS OF PILGRIM'S PROGRESS.
Style based on that of the Bible and Fox's Book of Martyrs studied in Bedford Jail. Pure and homely English. Words of two syllables. Allegory transparent in the names of the characters. Many characteristics of the novel. Human interest. Realistic treatment. Clear characterization. English atmosphere and scenery.

OUTLINE XXXVIII

Defoe and the Beginnings of Journalism

I. LIFE OF DANIEL DEFOE. Born in London, 1661(?). Received a good education in a dissenting academy at Newington Green. Although trained for the dissenting ministry, he entered mercantile business. Wrote numerous tracts on political subjects. Defended character and policies of King William (See The Trueborn Englishman). As a result of his pamphlet, The Shortest Way with the Dissenters, was imprisoned, 1703-04. Later took an active part in politics, and served the government several times as secret agent. Began novel-writing late in life with Robinson Crusoe (1719). Died, 1731.

II. WORKS OF DEFOE.

1. Pamphlets. Of the large number of occasional pamphlets the following are examples:

- a. The Occasional Conformity of Dissenters (1698).
- b. The Shortest Way with the Dissenters (1702).
- c. Reasons against the Succession of the House of Hanover (1713).

2. Periodical Writing.

- a. A Review of the Affairs of France (1704-13).

Appeared at first once, later twice, and finally thrice a week. An imaginary 'Scandal Club' contributed to its pages. Written entirely by Defoe. A landmark in English periodical literature. Helped to suggest The Tatler and The Spectator. (See Outline XL.)

- b. Other periodicals and newspapers.

During the periods indicated Defoe was in some way connected with the following: Mercurius Politicus (1716-20); The Whitehall Evening Post (1718-20); The Daily Post (1719-25); Applebee's Journal (1720-26).

3. Novels.

- a. Robinson Crusoe (1719-20).
- b. Captain Singleton (1720).
- c. Moll Flanders (1722).
- d. Colonel Jack (1722).
- e. Jonathan Wild (1725).

III. JOURNALISM BEFORE AND AFTER DEFOE.

1. Distribution of News.

- a. The Weekly News (1622-41).
- b. The Intelligencer (begun, 1663). Edited by Roger L'Estrange.
- c. The London Gazette (1666 to present time).
- d. The Daily Courant (begun, 1702). The first English daily paper.

2. Editorial Commentary and Criticism.

- a. The Tatler (1709-11). (See Outline XL.)
- b. The Spectator (1711-12, 1714). (See Outline XL.)

OUTLINE XXXIX

Jonathan Swift

- I. LIFE. Born Hoey's Court, Dublin, 1667. At Kilkenny Grammar School, 1674-82. B.A., 'by special grace,' Trinity College, Dublin, 1686. Protégé of Sir William Temple, at Moor Park, 1688-99. Took orders, 1695. Laracor, 1700. Active in controversy and political intrigue. Intimate with Tory ministers, 1710-14. Edited Examiner, 1710-11. Disappointed of a bishopric, accepted Deanery of St. Patrick's, Dublin, 1713. Death of Queen Anne and Fall of Tory Party, 1714. From this time, resided mainly in Ireland. Last years excessively melancholy, especially after the death of 'Stella' (Esther Johnson), 1728. Became violently insane, 1741. Died 1745, leaving his fortune to found a lunatic asylum in Dublin.
- II. WRITINGS.
1. Poems. Chiefly mocking and satiric in tone.
 - a. Miscellanies (1711).
 - b. Cadenus and Vanessa (written, 1713).
 - c. On The Death of Dr. Swift (1731).
 2. Controversial Papers.
 - a. The Battle of the Books (1704, written, 1698).
 - b. The Tale of a Tub (1704, written, 1696-8).
 - c. Contents and Dissensions in Athens and Rome (1701).

 - e. Argument against Abolishing Christianity (1708).
 - f. The Conduct of the Allies (1711).
 - g. The Public Spirit of the Whigs (1714).
 - h. Letters of M. B. Drapier (1724).
 - i. A Modest Proposal for Preventing the Children of Poor People from being a Burden to their Parents (1729).
 3. Prose Miscellanies.
 - a. Meditation upon a Broomstick (1704).
 - b. Predictions of Isaac Bickerstaff (1708).
 - c. Account of Partridge's Death (1708).
 - d. Polite Conversation (1738).
 - e. Directions for Servants (written before 1738).
 4. Journal to Stella (written, 1710-13).
 5. Travels of Lemuel Gulliver (1726).
 6. The History of the Four Last Years of Queen Anne (1758).
- III. SIGNIFICANCE. Swift's language is studiously plain; but a savage irony underlies his apparent directness and simplicity, and his criticism is at once penetrating and destructive. He preceded, and his writings and conversation powerfully influenced the chief wits of the Queen Anne period and after. The periodicals of Addison and Steele, Pope's satires, and later, Fielding's novels, show this influence in various ways.

 - b. Pride and Prejudice (1813).
 - c. Mansfield Park (1814).
 - d. Emma (1816).
 - e. Northanger Abbey (written, 1798; pub., 1817).
 - f. Persuasion (1818).
- III. CHARLES DICKENS (1812-1870).
 1. Life. Early life spent in poverty. His own youthful story closely suggested in David Copperfield. Achieved success in fiction at age of 24. The most popular English novelist. The zeal of the social reformer combined with abounding humor and sentiment.
 2. Novels.
 - a. Oliver Twist (1837-38).
 - b. Nicholas Nickleby (1838-39).
 - c. Barnaby Rudge (1841).
 - d. Dombey and Son (1846-48).
 - e. David Copperfield (1849-50).
 - f. Bleak House (1852-53).
 - g. A Tale of Two Cities (1859).
- IV. WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY (1811-1863).
 1. Life. Born in India; educated at Cambridge. Studied drawing and law. For many years a random contributor to Fraser's and Punch. Reputation established upon publication of Vanity Fair. A keen observer and sympathetic though satirical interpreter.
